Tips + Tricks Before Your Departure

1. Before heading out, make sure you either put your mail on hold, or ask a trusted neighbor to collect it for you.
2. Even if you have a garage, park vehicles outside to give the illusion that there is still a house full of people.
3. Unplug any small electronics, and make sure that your fire alarms / CO detector are operating properly.
4. Set your thermostat to a reasonable temperature to avoid heating or cooling an empty house.
5. Make arrangements for plants, as well as pets that weren't able to join in on the adventure.
6. Leave some lights on, or install a motion-activated light outdoors.

TRAVELING IN THE

“Know - How”

Make a Packing List

Weeks before you leave, we suggest creating a packing list. Allowing some time before departure gives you the ability to think of last-minute items you may have forgotten! Also, bring extras! You never know where your adventure will lead, but it is better to have some extra items such as clothing, shoes, etc in case something were to happen to the originals.

Lastly, ensure that everything on that list will fit into your bags. What good is a completed list, without the proper luggage? We suggest the Denali Daypack, featuring a 32 liter capacity.

Plan Ahead

Start your planning early! Ensure a safe and successful vacation by allotting enough time to properly research your destination. Utilize available resources such as Google, Youtube, Yelp and others to coordinate your route in the safest possible manner. If you are leaving the county, it is helpful to check in with the US State Department for any travel advisories. Make sure you are cognizant of the rules and regulations of your destination, as well as anywhere along your route. Our ballistics are TSA safe as well as airport friendly.

Go Where the Locals Go

The safest areas tend to be where the locals are. Stay in well populated areas, and remain alert to your surroundings. Always remember that it is not considered rude to be cautious. Take time to get to know the people you meet, and never trust based off of your first instinct. The My Kitty Self Defense Key Chain is the perfect option for some discreet handheld proactive protection.

What do customers have to say about our Ballistic Panel / Inserts?

"I feel much better knowing that my grandson has a layer of protection with him at school. The product is lightweight and built well. I am very impressed with everything from the ordering process to the delivery that was on time. Thank you and your team for a great job!!!" - Randy

"I actually ordered this product to place in my daughter's backpack. With the way the world is these days it does give me some peace of mind knowing she has something that can protect her vital organs if there were to ever be any sort of incident while she is at school." -Erin

"The 8"x10" panel slips easily into a small backpack. It's lightweight, well-made, and doesn't take up much room. The rest of my backpack items have plenty of space alongside the ballistic panel. I like having it, since I frequent airports a lot. As we know, airports are the new hot target for bad guys." -Lanky
